

In This Issue . . .

This issue is a compilation of jokes and quotes sent to INNOVA, Inc during 2002 -2003. Some may be offensive to our readers so we apologize now as no offense is intended.

Published monthly by:
Thomas E. Ollerman, Ph.D.
INNOVA, Inc.

1749 S. Westwood
Mesa, AZ 85210

480-838-4854 • Fax 480-897-6180
<http://www.innovainc.com>
email: tom@innovainc.com
$21.95 Annual Subscription

Take A Break and Relax Again

A local business was looking for office help. They put a sign in the window saying: “HELP WANTED. Must be able to type, must be good with a computer and must be bilingual. We are an Equal Opportunity Employer.” A short time later, a dog trotted up to the window, saw the sign and went inside. The dog approaches the manager and drops the sign at his feet. The manager says to the dog, “This must be a joke. You can’t possibly be here for the job.”

To this the dog lets out a healthy bark, jumps down, runs to the typewriter and types out a perfect letter. The manager was stunned, but then told the dog, “The sign says you have to be good with a computer”

The dog proceeded to produce a spreadsheet and database and presented them to the manager. He looked at the dog and said, “I realize that you are a very intelligent dog and have some interesting abilities. However. I still can’t give you the job.”

The dog jumped down and went to a copy of the sign and put his paw on the part about being an Equal Opportunity Employer. The manager said, “Yes. but the sign also says that you have to be bilingual.”

The dog looked at him straight in the face and said, “Meow.”

An Amish boy and his father were visiting a mall. They were intrigued by many things they saw but especially by two shiny, silver walls that could move apart and then slide back together again. The boy asked, “What is this, father?”

The father (never having seen an elevator) responded, “Son, I have never seen anything like this in my life, I don’t know what it is.”

While the boy and his father were watching with

Executive Trivia Question...

What is a fishyback?

amazement, a very ugly old lady hobbled up to the moving walls and pressed a button. The walls opened and the lady hobbled between them into a small room.

The walls closed and the boy and his father watched the small circular numbers above the walls light up sequentially. They continued to watch until it reached the last number and then the numbers began to light in the reverse order. Finally the walls opened up again and a gorgeous, voluptuous 24-year-old blonde woman stepped out.

The father, not taking his eyes off the young woman, said quietly to his son, "Go get your mother."

A lawyer named Strange died, and his friend asked the tombstone maker to inscribe on his tombstone, "Here lies Strange, an honest man, and a lawyer"

The inscriber insisted that such an inscription would be confusing for passersby would tend to think that three men were buried under the stone. However he suggested an alternative: He would inscribe, "Here lies a man who was both honest and a lawyer."

"That way, whenever anyone walked by the tombstone and read it, they would be certain to remark, "That's Strange!"

Mrs. O'Donovan was walking down the street in Dublin when she saw Father Rafferty. "Hello." said the Father, "And how is Mrs. O'Donovan? Didn't I marry you two years ago?"

Mrs. O'Donovan replied, "That you did, Father."

The priest asked, "And are there any little ones yet?"

Mrs. O'Donovan said, "No, not yet Father."

The priest said, "Well, I'm going to Rome next week, and I'll light a candle for you." Mrs. O'Donovan thanked him and away she went.

A few years later they met again. "Well now, Mrs. O'Donovan, "How are you?" asked the Father.

"Oh very well," Mrs. O'Donovan said.

"And tell me. Have you any little ones yet?" he asked.

"Oh yes, Father. I've had three sets of twins, and four singles. Ten in all," Mrs. O'Donovan answered.

"Now isn't that wonderful. And how is your lovely husband?" asked the priest.

"Oh," Mrs. O'Donovan said, he's gone to Rome to blow out that damn candle!"

Two guys are bungee-jumping one day. The first guy says to the second. "You know, we could make a lot of money running our own bungee-jumping service in Mexico."

The second guy thinks it is a great idea, so the two pool their money, and buy everything they need - a tower, an elastic cord, insurance, etc. They travel to Mexico and begin to set up on the square. As they are constructing the tower, a crowd begins to assemble. Slowly, more and more people gather to watch them at work.

The first guy jumps. He bounces at the end of the cord, but when he comes back up, the second guy notices that he has a few cuts and scratches. Unfortunately, the second guy isn't able catch him, he falls again, bounces and comes back up again. This time, he is bruised and bleeding. Again, the second guy misses him. The first guy falls again and bounces back up. This time he comes back up pretty messed up - he's got a couple of broken bones and is almost unconscious.

Luckily, the second guy finally catches him this time and says, "What happened? Was the cord too long?"

The first guy says, "No, the cord was fine, but what the heck is a piñata?"

A man left for work one Friday afternoon but instead of going home, he stayed out the entire weekend hunting with the boys and spending his entire paycheck.

When he finally appeared at home Sunday night, he was confronted by a very angry wife and was nagged for nearly two hours with a tirade about his actions. Finally his wife stopped the nagging and simply said to him, "How would you like it if you didn't see me for two or three days?"

To which he replied, "That would be fine with me."

Monday went by and he didn't see his wife. Tuesday and Wednesday came and went with the same results. But on Thursday, the swelling went down just enough where he could see her a little out of the corner of his left eye.

A man and his wife were invited to dinner by their elderly neighbors. The old gentleman endearingly preceded every request to his wife with 'Honey,' 'Darling,' Sweetheart,' 'Pumpkin' etc. The guests were impressed since the couple had been married almost 70 years.

While the wife was off in the kitchen, the man said to the gentleman, "I think it's wonderful that after all the years you've been married, you still refer to your wife in those terms."

The elderly husband just hung his head. "Actually I forgot her name about 10 years ago."

As a senior citizen was driving down the freeway, his car phone rang. Answering he heard his wife's voice urgently warning him. "Herman, I just heard on the news that there's a car going the wrong way on 280. Please be careful!"

"Heck," said Herman, "It's not just one car. It's hundreds of them!"

The Blonde opened his lunch and said, "Bologna again." If I get a bologna sandwich one more time, I'm jumping too."

The next day the Irishman opened his lunch box, saw corned beef and cabbage and jumped to his death. The Mexican opened his lunch, saw a burrito and jumped too. The blonde opened his lunch, saw the bologna and jumped to his death as well.

At the funeral the Irishman's wife was weeping. She said, "If I'd known how really tired he was of corned beef and cabbage, I never would have given it to him again!"

The Mexican's wife also wept and said, "I could have given him tacos or enchiladas! I didn't realize he hated burritos so much."

Everyone turned and stared at the Blonde's wife. "Hey, don't look at me, she said, "he makes his own lunch."

Two blondes are walking down the road when one says, "Look at that dog with one eye!" The other blonde covers one of her eyes and says, "Where?"

A defendant was on trial for murder. There was strong evidence indicating guilt, but there was no corpse. In the defense's closing statement the lawyer, knowing that his client would probably be convicted, resorted to a trick.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I have a surprise for you all," the lawyer said as he looked at his watch. "Within one minute, the person presumed to be dead in this case will walk into this courtroom. "He looked toward the courtroom door. The jurors, somewhat stunned, all looked on eagerly. A minute passed. Nothing happened.

Finally the lawyer said, "Actually, I made up the previous statement. But you all looked on with anticipation. I therefore put to you that you have a reasonable doubt in this case as to whether anyone was killed and insist that you return a verdict of not guilty."

The jury, clearly confused, retired to deliberate. A few minutes later, the jury returned and pronounced a verdict of guilty.

"But how?" inquired the lawyer. "You must have had some doubt; I saw all of you stare at the door."

The jury foreman replied: "Oh we did look, but your client didn't"

The bartender was washing his glasses and an elderly Irishman came in. With great difficulty, the Irishman hoisted his bad leg over the barstool, pulled himself up painfully, asked for a sip of Irish whiskey. The Irishman looked down the bar and said. "Is that Jesus down there?" The bartender nodded and the Irishman told him to give Jesus an Irish whiskey also.

The next patron was an ailing Italian with a hunched back and slowness of movement. He shuffled up to the barstool and asked for a glass of Chianti. He also looked down the bar and asked if that was Jesus sitting down there. The bartender nodded and the Italian said to give him a glass of Chianti also.

The third patron, a redneck, swaggered in dragging his knuckles on the floor and hollered. 'Barkeep, set me up a cold one. Hey, is that God's Boy down there?' The barkeep nodded, and the redneck told him to give Jesus a cold one too.

As Jesus got up to leave, he walked over to the Irishman and touched him and said, "For your kindness, you are healed!" The Irishman felt the strength come back to his leg, and he got up and danced a jig to the door. Jesus touched the Italian and said, "For your kindness you are healed!" The Italian felt his back straighten and he raised his hands above his head and did a flip out the door. Jesus walked over to the redneck, and the redneck jumped back and exclaimed. "Don't touch me, I'm drawin' disability!"

Two police officers saw an old woman staggering down the street. They stopped her and decided she had had far too much to drink, so instead of taking her to jail they offered to drive her home. The cops loaded her into the police car and one of the officers got in the back seat with the drunk woman.

As they drove through the streets they kept asking the woman where she lived, but all she would say as she stroked the officer's arm is, "You're passionate"

They drove awhile longer and asked again, but again the same response as she stroked his arm: "You're passionate."

The officers were getting a little upset so they stopped the car and said to the woman, "Look we have driven around this city for two hours and you still haven't told us where you live."

The drunk lady replied, "I keep telling to tell you, you're passin it!"

Manny was almost 29 years old. Most of his friends had already gotten married, and Manny just bounced from one relationship to the next. Finally a friend asked him. "What's the matter? Are you looking for the perfect woman? Are you THAT particular? Can't you find anyone who suits you?"

"No." Manny replied. "I meet a lot of nice girls, but as soon as I bring them home to meet my parents my mother doesn't like them. So I keep on looking!"

"Listen." his friend suggested, "Why don't you find a girl who's just like your dear ole Mother?"

Many weeks past before

Manny and his friend got together again.

"So Manny, Did you find the perfect girl yet? One that's just like your Mother?"

Manny shrugged his shoulders, "Yes I found one just like Mom. My mother loved her, they became great friends"

"Excellent!!! So, are you and this girl engaged, yet?"

"I'm afraid not. My Father can't stand her!"

Father Murphy walks into a pub in Donegal, and says to the first man he meets, "Do you want to go to heaven?" The man said, "I do Father."

The priest said, "Then stand over there against the wall."

Than the priest asked the second man, "Do you want to get to heaven?"

"Certainly, Father," was the man's reply.

"Then stand over there against the wall," said the priest.

Then Father Murphhy walked up to O'Toole and said, "Do you want to go to heaven?"

O'Toole said, "No, I don't Father."

The priest said, "I don't believe this. You mean to tell me that when you die you don't want to go to heaven?"

O'Toole said, "Oh, when I die, Yes. I thought you were getting a group together to go right now."

Mr. Pete Monaghan came into the newsroom to pay for her husband's obituary She was told by the kindly newsman that it was a dollar a word and he remembered Pete and wasn't it too bad about him passing away. She thanked him for his kind words and bemoaned the fact that she only had two dollars. But she wrote out the obituary. "Pete died." The newsman said he thought old Pete deserved more and he'd give her three more words at no charge. Mrs. Pete Monaghan thanked him and rewrote the obituary: "Pete died. Boat for sale."

Young O'Donnell rushed into a church, placed his rifle under a pew and entered the confessional. "Father" he said breathlessly, "I've just shot down two British lieutenants!" Hearing no response he went on: "I also knocked off a British captain!"

When there was still no response from the priest, O'Donnell said, "Father, have ye fainted?"

"Of course I haven't fainted," replied the confessor. "I'm waitin' for you to stop talking politics and commence confessing your sins!"

A married couple went to the hospital to have their baby' delivered. Upon arrival the doctor said that he had invented a machine that would transfer a portion of the pain to the father. He asked if they were willing to try it out.

They were both very much in favor of it. The doctor set the knob at 10% for starters, explaining that even 10% was probably more pain than the father had ever experienced before.

But as the labor progressed, the husband felt fine, so he asked the doctor to bump the machine up a notch. The doctor then adjusted the machine to 20%. The doctor checked the husband's blood pressure and pulse and was amazed at how well he was doing. At 50% the husband was still holding up fine, since this was obviously helping out his wife he encouraged the doctor to transfer all of the pain.

The wife delivered a healthy baby with virtually no pain. She and her husband were absolutely thrilled.

Everything was great until they got home and found the mailman dead on the porch.

An older couple met their demise in an auto accident and were transported to heaven. As they were waiting to be processed, they began to look all around at their setting for eternity. The wife was amazed at the beauty, peace and contentment that she felt and commented over and over about what a nice place heaven was and how fortunate she felt to be there.

The husband sneered, "If it weren't for you and your damned oat bran muffins and health food crap, we'd have been here 15 years ago."

A father takes his son, Marvin, into New York to treat him to a privately scheduled flight to see all of Manhattan as a high school graduation present. He asks the pilot how much such a flight would cost and the pilot tells him $3000.

"That's too much I'll give you $1500", says the father.

The pilot responds, "I'll tell you what. I'll fly you for $1500 but if either one of you hollers or screams, you'll pay me $3000."

They agree and the pilot takes them on a flight scarier than a roller-coaster ride. They do loop-the-loops, fly upside down eight feet above the highway, do barrel rolls, fly toward skyscrapers and veer away just before crashing. Not a single scream or holler from either the father or the son.

As they are landing, the pilot leans over his shoulder and says, "I didn't hear you scream or holler so I guess you only owe me $1500. But wasn't there a time you felt you were going to scream?"

To which the father replied, "Yes, there was. When Marvin fell out of the plane."

A woman went to the Doctor's office, where she was seen by one of the new doctors, but after about four minutes in the examination room, she burst out, screaming as she ran down the hall.

An older doctor stopped her and asked what the problem was, and she told him her story. After listening, he had her sit down and told her to go relax in another room.

The older doctor marched down hallway to the back where the first doctor was and demanded, "What's the matter with you? Mrs. Terry is 63 years old, she has four grown children and seven grandchildren, and you told her she was pregnant?"

The new doctor continued to write on his clipboard and without looking up said, "Does she still have the hiccups?"

A man goes to doctor. He says he's depressed. Says life seems harsh and cruel Says he feels all alone in a threatening world where what lies ahead is vague and uncertain. Doctor says the treatment is simple.

"The great clown Pagliacci is in town tonight. Go and see him. That should pick you up."

The man bursts into tears. "But doctor, I am Pagliacci."

A man is stranded on a desert island, all alone for ten years. One day, he sees a speck in the horizon He thinks to himself, "It's not a ship." The speck gets a little closer and he thinks, "It's not a boat." The speck gets even closer and he thinks, "It's not a raft." Then, out of the sea comes this gorgeous blonde woman, wearing a wet suit and scuba gear. She comes up to the man and says, 'How long has it been since you've had a cigarette?'

"Ten years!", he says.

She reaches over and unzips a waterproof pocket on her left sleeve and pulls out a pack of fresh cigarettes He takes one, lights it, takes a long drag and says, "Man, oh man! Is that good!" Then she asked, 'How long has it been since you've had a drink of whiskey?'

He replies, "Ten years!"

She reaches over, unzips her waterproof pocket on her right sleeve, pulls out a flask and gives it to him. He takes a long swig and says, "Wow, that's fantastic!"

Then she starts unzipping a longer zipper that runs down the front of her wet suit and she says to him, "And how long has it been since you've had some real fun?"

And the man replies, "Wow! Don't tell me that you've got golf clubs in there!"

An explorer in the deepest Amazon suddenly finds himself surrounded by a bloodthirsty group of natives. Upon surveying his situation, he says quietly to himself. "I'm screwed."

There is a ray of light from the sky and a voice booms out, "No you are NOT screwed! Pick up that stone in front of you and bash the head of the chief."

So the explorer picks up the stone and proceeds to bash in the head of the chief. He breathing heavily while standing above the lifeless body. Surrounding him are the 100 native warriors with a look of shock on their faces.

The voice booms out again, "Okay .. NOW you're screwed!"

Two guys walked into a bar late one afternoon and noticed that among the few customers, was one guy sitting quietly in the shadows at the end of the bar. The two ordered some beers. The bartender brought them and said, "That will be 50 cents please." They started a tab and a short time later ordered two more beers and again they were charged 25 cents each. The two could not believe the good deal and after having a third beer for the same price, they decided to ask the bartender what the catch was.

The bartender replied, "There is no catch, gentleman. I have just started brewing this beer onsite and I am selling it below cost to introduce it to my customers. I am happy to see that you enjoy the beer."

Indeed, they noticed that almost everyone was enjoying the beer and the remarkable price except for the one man at the end of the bar. He had not ordered anything since the two came in. Becoming very curious about the guy at the end of the bar, the two asked the bartender. "Doesn't he ever order anything?"

"Oh yes," said the bartender. "That is Kenneth Jarvis, our local CPA. He is just waiting for happy hour."

Q: How many French men does it take to screw in a light bulb?

A: One. He holds the bulb, and all of Europe revolves around him.

From the witness stand

"You seem to have more than the average share of intelligence for a man of your background," sneered the lawyer to a witness on the stand.

"If I wasn't under oath, I'd return the compliment." replied the witness.

In September, Austria's Daily Telegraph reported that the Federal Attorney General's office had ruled that eyesight and medical tests required of flight crews and air traffic controllers could no longer be given because they violate the country's anti-discrimination laws. The Civil Aviation Safety Agency, concerned about physically unqualified pilots, announced immediately that it would appeal the ruling but the association of cabin crew members, for one, was reluctant to support the appeal because it fears that such medical tests make it easier for airlines to impose weight restrictions on flight attendants.

The Merced (Calif.) Sun-Star reported that an unnamed man was taken to a hospital in Modesto, Calif. after his head was split open by a brick. Police called to the scene, were expecting to find foul play, but witnesses said the man was merely trying to see how far up he could throw a buck, and since it was dark (2:30 am), the man lost track of the brick's flight and could not get out of the way when it came down on his head. Police said alcohol appeared to be involved.

A college lad was home for break. He opened the refrigerator and saw a photo of a thin, scantily clad young woman.

"Mom, "What's this?" he asked.

"I put that there to remind me not to overeat." she said.

"Is it working?" he asked.

"Yes and no," she said, "I've lost 15 pounds, but your dad has gained 20!"

"I have enough money to last me the rest of my life, unless I buy something."

Jackie Mason

Puns of Fun

A backward poet writes inverse.

A man's home is his castle in a manor of speaking.

A bicycle can't stand on its own because it's two tired.

A hangover is a wrath of grapes.

Dancing cheek-to-cheek is really a form of floor play.

Does the name Pavlov ring a bell?

Condoms should be used on every conceivable occasion.

When two egotists meet, it is an I for an I.

Continued on page 8

OUR MISSION:

To assist corporations in developing creative and innovative ideas necessary to support executive leadership.

Dr. Thomas Ollerman is President of INNOVA, Inc., an international consulting firm specializing in corporate innovation and creative problem solving.

His background includes expertise gained in the areas of global executive development team building, and creative problem solving at IBM, participative leadership and team building at Motorola, Inc., statistical research for ITT Courier, Hartford Insurance Company, and Dell Computer Corporation.

He has also done executive leadership development for Amdahl Computers, Inc., United Technologies, Rohm and Haas, Inc., strategic planning for China Lake Naval Weapons Center and Point Magu Naval Weapons Center, downsizing for the US Naval Air Command, process improvement for Lockheed Federal Systems, deregulation of the Power Company of Southern Scotland, quality improvement program development for Logoven Petroleum of Venezuela and Exxon Petroleum Company, organizational restructuring of Pepsico of Latin America and served as the assistant director of the "Therapeutic Community" in Scotland.

Dr. Ollerman publishes a monthly executive newsletter, INNOVATIVE Times, on corporate innovation and creativity. In addition, he has published five business assessment instruments: Thinking Preference Inventory; Facilitator Intervention Profile; The Entrepreneurial Index; Deductive Thinking for Creative Problem Solving; and Creating Your Own Consultancy. These instruments are often used in developing corporate programs in conjunction with his chapter on Executive Team Facilitation: Some Observations, published in Business Driven Action Learning: Global Best Practices. Yury Borshyk (Editor), Chapter 17, MacMillan Press and St. Martin's Press, London, United Kingdom, 2000.

He has recently completed twelve executive leadership books on country and corporate cultural beliefs and values that are pre-requisites to understanding global alliances, joint ventures, mergers, and acquisitions.

Prior experience includes his role as a Director of Behavioral Medicine in a large medical teaching hospital, an international seminar leader and consultant for 30 years, as well as holding undergraduate and graduate teaching positions on four university faculties of which two schools selected him as Professor of the Year.

At the present time, he is serving as an adjunct faculty member at Mesa Community College, teaching General Psychology and Research Methodology as well as Business Ethics at Grand Canyon University in Phoenix, Arizona.

Dr. Ollerman completed a NIMH Postdoctoral Fellowship in Community Psychology at Johns Hopkins Medical School, Department of Psychiatry in Baltimore, Maryland and was a one-year Fellow at Innovation University. He has a Ph.D. in Counseling Psychology, a Masters degree in Experimental Psychology and a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology.

Idiot Sightings

I live in a semi rural area. We recently had a new neighbor call the local township administrative office to request the removal of the Deer Crossing sign on our road. The reason: Too many deer were being hit by cars and he didn't want them to cross there anymore.

I was signing the receipt for my credit card purchase when the clerk noticed I had never signed my name on the back of the credit card. She informed me that she could not complete the transaction unless the card was signed. When I asked why, she explained that it was necessary to compare the signature I had just signed on the receipt, So I signed the credit card in front of her. She carefully compared the signature to the one I had just signed on the receipt. As luck would have it, they matched.

When my husband and I arrived at an automobile dealership to pick up our car, we were told the keys had been locked in it. We went to the service department and found a mechanic working feverishly to unlock the driver's side door. As I watched from the passenger side, I instinctively tried the door handle and discovered that it was unlocked. "Hey," I announced to the technician, "It's open!" To which he replied, "I know - I already got that side."

Best Spills of 2002

- An 18-wheeler full of beer - Interstate 5 near Fort Tejon, Calif.
- 1,500 gallons of Southern Comfort whiskey - warehouse in Louisville, Ky.
- 20 tons of hot dogs - Interstate 70, Kansas City, Mo.
- Pizza dough leaking out of a truck's door, from rising yeast, spread over 25 miles of highway, from a Tombstone Pizza truck near Chippewa Falls, Wis.
- 270,000 eggs - Interstate 65, Crown Point, Ind.
- $1 million in cash U.S. Highway 160, near Pagosa Springs, Colo.
- 50,000 inch-long screws causing scores of flat tires on Interstate 65, near Lebanon Junction, Ky.
- And 37 voting machines fell off of a truck and were ruined, six days before primary elections.

Leonard da Vinci could write with one hand and draw with the other at the same time.

A dime has 118 ridges around the edge.

What's the definition for a will?
(It's a dead giveaway).

In democracy your vote counts.
In feudalism you count votes.

A chicken crossing the road is poultry in motion.

Show me a piano falling down a mine shaft, and I'll show you A-flat minor.

The man who fell into an upholstery machine is fully recovered.

A Local Area Network in Australia: The LAN down under.

Every calendar's days are numbered.

A lot of money is tainted - it tain't yours and it tain't mine.

A plateau is a high form of flattery.

Once you've seen one shopping center, you've seen a mall.

Those who jump off a Paris bridge are in Seine.

Acupuncture is a jab well done.

At a convention of biological scientists, one researcher remarks to another, "Did you know that in our lab we have switched from mice to lawyers for our experiments?"

"Really?" the other replied, "Why did you switch?"

Executive Trivia Answer...

A ship loaded with highway truck trailers.

Thought To Ponder...

The trouble with America is that there are far too many wide-open spaces surrounded by teeth.

Charles Luckman

"Well, for five reasons. First, we found that lawyers are far more plentiful. Second, the lab assistants don't get so attached to them. Third, lawyers multiply faster in numbers. Fourth, animal rights groups will not object to their torture. And fifth, there are some things even a rat won't do.

There is a drawback however; sometimes it's very hard to extrapolate the test results to human beings?

Following a Detroit Free Press interview in November with bulk e-mailer Alan Ralsky who gloated that his success at sending "spam" advertising had paid for his $740,000 home. Internet spam-haters tracked down Ralsky's West Bloomfield, Mich. address and inundated him with thousands of unsolicited hardcopy, catalogs and mailings.

Marriages are made in heaven. But, again, so are thunder, lightning, tornados and hail.

Mae West

If a man speaks in the forest, and there's no woman around to hear him...Is he still wrong?

Unknown

Q: What is it when a man talks dirty to a woman?

A: Sexual harassment.

Q: What is it called when a woman talks dirty to a man?

A: $3.99 a minute.

Al Capone's business card said he was a used furniture dealer.

Only one person in two billion will live to be 116 or older.